Big Brother program organized in Hancock

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Ken France, Shoreline Park resident, sponsored an organizational meeting Sunday for formation of a Big Brother, Big Sister Program in the community. France said, "A great thing is getting started here and it is going to go over big."

France reports he was a charter member of the New Orleans Big Brother, Big Sister program and has been involved in the program for more than 30 years throughout the United States.

The program involves a one-on-one concept, and usually involves fatherless children who do not have someone they can talk with, according to France.

France is proud of one 10-year-old youth he worked with in Maryland, stating, "He was a little kid when he was two years old, went into business establishments threatening with a gun for money. Today he is the vice-president of a large bank."

The National headquarters for the Big Brother, Big Sister program in the United States reports there are a total of 496 children in Hancock County with only one parent.

The program will at first be on a local

PRJC, USM eye Hancock higher education needs

A promotion scheduled Saturday at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce could get interested individuals started toward a college degree in Hancock County.

Representatives from the University of Southern Mississippi and Pearl River Junior College (Vo-Tech Center) will be at the Chamber office from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to talk with prospective students.

"This is an experiment to determine the interest there is in the area for lower division (freshman and sophomore) classes at the Vo-Tech Center in Bay St. Louis, and at the University of Southern Mississippi and Pearl River Junior College."

Through the Two plus Two program between USM and Pearl River Junior College, there are a number of degree programs available from USM Gulf Coast in which the freshman and sophomore course work is available at the Vo-Tech Center in Hancock County.

Once the freshman and sophomore courses are completed the junior and senior coursework is available at USM's Gulf Park campus in Long Beach.

"This process of coursework for the freshman and sophomore years with the junior college and junior and senior coursework at USM is the basis for the Two plus Two program to allow for the completion of the degree without leaving the coast," Kirkpatrick said.

No appointment is necessary. Individuals who wish to discuss previously earned educational credits with USM and PRJC personnel are urged to bring all paperwork relating to these credits with them, regardless of where or when credits were earned.

"The interest we get on Saturday will have a bearing on the opportunities that are available for academic higher education in Hancock County in the future," Kirkpatrick said.

According to Al Bourgeois, director of the Vo-Tech Center, there have been several academic classes offered each term. However, low enrollment has prevented the center from making

Couple finds home

Waveland man charged in Shoreline shed heist

By EDGAR PEREZ

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department and Waveland Police have arrested a 24-year-old Waveland man in connection with the burglary of a shed on property of a Shoreline Park couple whose home burned down July 14.

Sheriff Sylvan Ladner said this week men from his department recovered a washing machine taken in the burglary as well as a hand truck.

Charged in the incident is Guy Rock, according to the sheriff.

Deputies Dennis Tartavouille and Chris Sands recovered a portion of the missing items off Texas Flat Road about 2 p.m. Monday after information on location of the items was supplied to the sheriff's office. Ladner and Deputies Delbert Seay and Alvin Ladner are continuing the investigation in an attempt to recover additional items reportedly taken, including carpenter's tools, drills, saws and some one dozen baby chicks.

The shed burglary occurred shortly after a fire destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lindsey who were left homeless as a result.

This week the couple remains lodged at the Texas Motel on US-90.

Lindsey reports they have been offered free rent for three months at a Bay Side Park residence, but are awaiting completion of repairs to the dwelling before they can move in.

Offers of help for the Lindsey's have come to the Echo, the sheriff's department, and to the couple after their plight was reported last Sunday.

Lindsey said this week he is overwhelmed by the response, and assured their many well-wishers they are now doing fine for the time being.

SEASON CLOSES

The Season ends today for all inside shrimp trawling along the Louisiana coast, state fisheries agents announced Monday. J. Burton Angelle, secretary of the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, said the area from Texas to Vermillion Bay, the last section of coast open for trawling, will close at midnight on July 26. He said the decision to close the season was based on reports of large numbers of immature white shrimp in the catches. The white shrimp season opens statewide on Aug. 20.

No gas shortage at Bay City Hall

By RICH ADAMS

Bay St. Louis city vehicles were reportedly filling their gasoline tanks at commercial service stations Wednesday after word allegedly came from City Hall indicating the city's gas pumps had run dry.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett, however, said the city pumps "have plenty of gasoline" and blamed the situation on a misunderstanding.

Reports late Wednesday indicated Bay police cars were receiving gasoline from Leo Moran's Premier station on U.S. 90 due to the city's alleged gas shortage.

Leo Moran, owner of the station, said police cars had been receiving gasoline from his station all day long.

"As far as I can tell, the city is out of gas," Moran said Wednesday.

When asked about the shortage, a City Hall spokesman said city vehicles were not getting fuel from local stations.

A spokesman from the Bay St. Louis Police Department said City Hall had informed that office to use local stations for gasoline purchases.

Improperly designed Bay tennis courts wasting away

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Washington Street Park public tennis courts, constructed at a cost of $7,307 in 1972, are rotting away.

The two courts, located on the 500 block of Washington Street adjacent to the Washington Street Housing Projects, were built with funds from Operation Uptown, a post Hurricane Camille agency.

The design of the courts is non-functional, improper. The courts are built on a four-foot high plateau and "partially" surrounded by fence.

Of the four sides of the plateau, two sides are completely fenced-in and the other two sides are partially screened-in, thus leaving a gaping 50-foot hole on both sides of the plateau.

The 50-foot hole has the same effect as the hole between the flippers of a pinball machine, and in pinball when the ball goes through the hole the player loses.

The Bay St. Louis City Hall Tennis Court also has a gaping hole in the back of the court.

However, the City Hall Tennis Court is level ground, and a player easily can move the ball back and forth.

the courts, and then climb back to the top.

Due to the nature of the game, picking up tennis balls is often time consuming. This activity is intensely aggravated when a player has to negotiate a virtual obstacle course simply to retrieve a ball.

Players thereby become discouraged from playing on the courts.

But once a tennis player becomes mounted a top these courts again, assuming his search for the ball was successful, the player becomes further hindered by the fence this time not because one is not there, but because one is there.

"The United States Lawn Tennis

Association recommends 'at least' 21 feet of space should be between the court's baseline and the backstop or fence," Brother Pascal, a tennis coach at St. Stanislaus, states.

The Washington courts have approximately 10.5 feet between the baseline and the fence-half the USLTA's recommended distance.

The result of this inadequate space can lead to injury. Anytime a ball is hit deep within the court the player has to back up for the return and may smash his head, entire body or (which most often occurs) his racquet against the fence.

A few months after the courts were built in the predominantly Black neighborhood, the two nets were torn down and "reportedly" used to accommodate several vandals as hammocks.

The cloth nets were replaced with wire nets, and the courts have subsequently gone down hill since then.

The courts, constantly becoming more enveloped with trees, vines and underbrush, now resemble the degraded City of the King of Twenty Kings inhabited by the monkey people in Rudyard Kipling's Jungle Book.

Rumors have attributed the degradation of the parks to "demographic reasons," including the surrounding population's alleged apathy concerning the courts.

Children in the neighborhood have been known to play on the court surface during its downed fall.

However, the courts have been used by both sides of the fence and the courts have been used by both sides of the fence.

"Much Ado About Nothing" plays at Armory tomorrow

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
William Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" will be performed at 8 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday at the National Guard Armory on Longfellow Road in Hancock County.

Coast Classics Theatre will present "Much Ado..." "The Imaginary Invalid," "She Stoops to Conquer," and "Romeo and Juliet," on the Gulf Coast during its 1979-1980 premiere season.

"The purpose of Gulf Coast Classics Theatre is to supplement curriculum for schools, as well as do good theatre and provide culture," Artistic Director Norman Maxwell says.

"Theatre is fun—it should turn people on, not off," he adds.

"Shakespeare wrote for the ordinary man. His work should be enjoyed by all—not a selected few," Maxwell suggests.

The other three plays are tentatively scheduled to appear at the Armory in August, October and April.

The Coast Theatre's four productions will also be featured in Biloxi and Jackson County.

A season ticket, which includes all four plays, is $12; individual tickets are $4 each. For additional information call the Theatre's ticket office at 435-2660.

"Coast Classics Theatre has come into being to bring to the Mississippi Gulf Coast classical works of recognized value with standards of excellence to the communities in our area in hopes of creating a greater appreciation and understanding of classical theatre," the organization reports.

Fishermen search for $500 bass

Few fishermen on Ross Barnett Reservoir north of Jackson have not heard about the $500 largemouth bass lurking beneath those murky waters. But where it is and who will catch it remains unknown.

Fisheries biologists with the Miss. Department of Wildlife Conservation maintain the prize fish is theirs. It is marked with a special numbered tag that will bring a lucky angler $500 when turned in to the agency's Jackson office.

Back in March and April, biologists and local bass club members tagged some 800 bass worth different cash amounts. The fish were released in all parts of the 33,000-acre lake from the Lowhead Dam to Pelahatchie Bay.

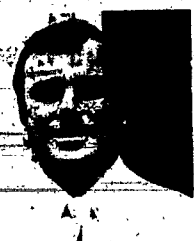

Biologists believe the data from the program will help determine the percent of bass caught in the reservoir each year. This will provide valuable information that can be used in better managing fish populations in the lake in the years ahead.

Officials say that 156 of the 815 tags have been returned, with some 80 percent of the tagged fish remaining to be caught. This, they say, means there are fish worth money waiting to be caught.

Lucky anglers catching a tagged fish should send the tag along with the catch date, location and type of bait used to Fish Tagging Program, MISS. Department of Wildlife Conservation, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205.

Some Of Our county-Wide Accomplishments Are:

Doctors are now delivering babies and performing surgery at Hancock General Hospital.

We now have 12 industries located at Port Bienville Industrial Park with employment over 400. With the recent announcement of Borg Warner and the planned expansion of existing industries, employment will increase in the forthcoming months. The new ammunition plant at NASA will also employ 1200 people.

The above 10 items are things we should be proud to hand down to our children. I am sure there are areas in which our County needs much improvement but with this kind of record you and I working together can keep our County moving forward.

If re-elected I will continue to serve with honesty, integrity and dedication.

Thank you,

They did their part for our nation!

Living among us in Hancock County are several people who can well remember the hell of war.

We are of course talking about the Prisoners of War, who were recognized with a special day by Congress on July 18. The Missing in Action members of the United States Forces are also remembered on that day.

In Hancock County we have been able to gather the names of seven who were Prisoners of War. They are Fred Curet, J.C. Baxter, Emile Piazza and Frank Trapani all of Bay St. Louis.

W.C. Frierson from Waveland and Louis Daniel Guillery and Clyde Bonwell of Diamondhead.

We expect there may be more than these seven in Hancock County but have been unable to find any other names.

The POW's and MIA's were given a party and luncheon at the Biloxi Veterans Administration.

We all should take notice of the sacrifices these gentlemen have made for our freedoms. We are glad they are now given special recognition.

They are veterans like many others and we should always take the time to realize without the bloodshed and sweat of our Military we wouldn't have the freedoms we enjoy today.

Are we getting soft as a nation, are we lacking the proper attitude to continue being a free nation?

We hope we will never have to answer the above question, but, if we have to, I hope we will be prepared as a Nation.

We wish to recognize the POW's of Hancock County and all the rest of them and the MIA's of this Nation.

We salute you, and hope you will receive better recognition on your day next year.

We understand a total of 35 responded to the invitation extended by the Veterans Administration from the Gulf Coast and there is the possibility of a chapter being formed in the area.

Fred Curet reports that any POW's and MIA's in the area can contact him for further information.

Health and Safety Tip

Human Skin Suffers From Too Much Tan

From the American Medical Association

Does soaking up the rays of a blazing sun make you feel healthy, young and full of vitality?

Are you a sun worshiper who regards bronzed skin as a status symbol of the leisure life?

We have an endless number of reasons for exposing ourselves to the sun. Some of us even must do it as a part of our job. But few of us consider that in the long run our health—and appearance—are likely to suffer from excessive sun exposure, says a pamphlet from the American Medical Association.

Know the facts before you go into the sun and decide just how much is best for you. Too much sun can mean anything from sunburn to rapidly aging skin to skin cancer.

How much you tan or burn depends, in large part, on how much ultraviolet radiation gets to your skin. Amount of ultraviolet light is greatest at the equator and decreases as you travel north or south. Seasonal changes also are important. Intensity of solar radiation reaches a maximum on June 21. In winter many of the rays in the sunburn range do not reach the northern part of the United States.

The time of day is important. The sun's rays are most potent between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. standard time. These are the hours when you are most likely to tan or burn. Cloudy days aren't necessarily safe. Sky radiation can burn without apparent bright sunlight. Dirt particles and smoke that contaminate the air may provide considerable protection against sunburn by absorbing sunburn-producing rays.

Altitude is another factor. Skiers high in the mountains find that there is less atmosphere to filter the ultraviolet rays. And snow reflects the sunburn rays right into your face.

Beach umbrellas can give a false sense of protection. Radiation waves radiate from all sides, penetrating under the umbrellas. Sand on the beach will reflect the sun's burning rays.

A comprehensive energy program along the general lines the President has proposed is an absolute necessity. If the American people are to continue to prosper, we must act now to assure adequate energy supplies for the future. We can not expect foreign oil to continue to meet such a large portion of our energy needs.

An all-out effort to develop domestic energy sources is essential if we are to maintain the high standard of living we now enjoy, preserve our freedom, and maintain a strong national security. Special programs and special powers will be required if we are to achieve our goal of developing new sources of energy at affordable prices. We can not obtain the results we must have through weak legislation and promotional programs encouraging conservation. We are going to have to move forward boldly with legislation aimed directly at the problem and programs with the authority to accomplish their purposes. The leadership must come forth with hard decisions which may not be immediately popular, but which will benefit our nation in the long run.

One of the first steps which should be taken in this all-out effort is creation of a special program to develop synthetic energy and make it available for widespread use. We must cut the red tape and proceed with a crash program similar to the one our country undertook in World War II when our foreign rubber supply was suddenly cut off. The synthetic rubber program was a tremendous success. In 1942, only 5,000 tons of synthetic rubber were produced. By 1946, annual production had been expanded to 1.2 million tons.

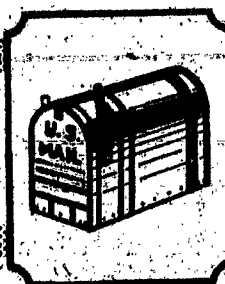

The synthetic rubber program of World War II exemplifies the resourcefulness and ability of the United States to attack a critical problem. It is exactly this type of program that is needed now to provide synthetic fuels in substantial quantity. The federal government—operating under special emergency powers—would provide the leadership and funding; U.S. industries would provide technology and production expertise; and informed advice would be provided by business and academic leaders.

Other sources of energy, including solar and nuclear, must also be developed. We already know the great potential of nuclear energy in particular. We should make a determined effort to assure the safety of nuclear power and develop an acceptable plan for the storage of nuclear waste so that we can make better use of this great, abundant energy source. The military has a history of safe and efficient use of nuclear energy to power submarines and large aircraft carriers. This high level of safety can be maintained in other uses of nuclear power as well. The public must be protected at all costs, and a crash program to assure the safety of nuclear power would erase the doubts which now exist.

It is encouraging that we finally appear to be on our way toward developing a comprehensive policy of developing new sources of energy. I hope we will be able to enact positive energy legislation in the coming months which will assure the strength of our nation for coming generations. Of course, as in all cases, I reserve judgment on how I will vote on any specific legislation or amendment thereto depending on the facts at the time. The important point is that the energy problem and its impact on our economy, national security, and way of life is now widely recognized and a solution is being actively sought.

Candidate decries secret budget action

July 23, 1979
Editor
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir:

After reading The Sea Coast Echo of Sunday, July 22, 1979 with regard to The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission's approval of a secret budget, I made a trip to the Port and Harbor's office and requested a copy of the Budget approved on last Thursday and I was refused a copy.

As a taxpayer of Hancock County I believe that the taxpayers are entitled to know what is proposed to spend our tax monies on so that if we are opposed to certain expenditures we can appear before the Board of Supervisors and state our objections before they approve the budget presented to them.

We, the taxpayers, are entitled to know what is proposed to spend our tax monies on so that if we have objections we can present them to the proper officials to protect our interests.

I publicly request The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission to furnish to The Sea Coast Echo a copy of the proposed budget approved on last Thursday so that the tax payers might be informed as to what their tax monies are proposed to be used for before they are approved.

Library Friends president resigns

July 20, 1979
Dear Friends of the Library,
It is with mixed emotions that I must resign from the office of President of the Friends of the Hancock County Library System.

On one hand I feel great happiness because my two sons and I finally will be joining my husband, Paul, in Montana where we are locating. Paul has already been there for some months.

However, I feel much sadness because I have thoroughly and truly enjoyed working with and for the Friends and our county's exceptional library system.

Our very able Vice President, Sherry Schwabacher, will take over the position I am reluctantly leaving. I know that all of you will come to her aid and assistance just as you have always come to mine.

If any of you should ever find yourselves in the Big Sky Counties of Montana, the "welcome mat" will be clearly visible. You know, a Southern gal never forgets the inbred quality of Southern Hospitality—no matter how far North she moves!

I thank all of you for being my "Friends."

Glass ordinance an important law

July 24, 1979
Mr. Ellis Cuevas
Editor and Publisher
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

On behalf of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club I would like to thank the Supervisors of Hancock County for passing an important ordinance in June which prohibits the use of bottles and or glass containers on the beaches in Hancock County.

Recently, a young girl was badly cut when she fell on some glass, in the vicinity of the Waveland beach. Twelve stitches were taken in her leg at Hancock General Hospital.

I urgently appeal to the Supervisors to enforce this ordinance as quickly as possible. Warning signs are to be installed along the beaches in Bay St. Louis, Waveland, and Clermont Harbor to alert the residents and visitors of the new ordinance and the imposing $50 fine if violated. Trash barrels should also be provided to prevent litter.

Again, I thank the Supervisors for planning to keep our beaches "safe and beautiful."

Congratulations to you Mr. Cuevas for your fine newspaper and for always supporting our projects.

Sincerely yours,

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

WEAKNESS IGNORED

Administration of the property tax system in the state has been called the single most important weakness in the state's tax structure by the Mississippi Economic Council, but the issue is largely being ignored by political candidates.

The 1990 Constitution states, "Taxation shall be uniform and equal throughout the state," but testimony by county tax assessors in a recent landmark court battle in Hinds County revealed that the constitutional provision is largely ignored.

At present, property is assessed in various methods and at various times, all in violation of the 1990 Constitution. One campaign heard across the state is the need for more jobs for Mississippians. But, if voters from outside the state often hesitate to come into Mississippi when they find property taxation so loosely administered and unpredictable from one local government to another.

If for no other reason, candidates should address themselves to this issue as a serious weakness which affects capital investments.

The MEC recommends statewide reappraisal of real property, equalization of assessments after reappraisal, expanded training for assessors, and enforcement of all tax statutes.

The Council also recommends that the state place a reasonable limit on any increase in local property tax revenue. It calls for a reappraisal of property to ensure that local governments will not receive a windfall or collect more local tax money than is needed.

The water in our local area and the Louisiana marshes is really messed up.
High winds and rain are the reasons for these adverse conditions.
The fishing will not improve until the weather gets better. It all depends on the weather, folks.
The Bureau of Fish and Wildlife has a toll free number that can be called to report violations of the law and to file complaints.
The toll free number is 1-800-682-5471. The bureau also has appointed representatives that we can call to file complaints with and answer questions.
The closest representative that we can call is Billy Gollot of L. D. Seafood. Gollot's home phone is 374-2192 and his business phone is 435-2291. Louisiana is really getting famous for catching big record breaking fish. Recently Pat Parra of Galliano, Louisiana caught a 222 pound 12 oz. tarpon.

The tarpon is the fourth largest ever caught anywhere in the world, and the world's record for 130 pound test line. Tarpon should start showing up in our area real soon. Some advice for those that would like to become tarpon fishermen is that it takes a lot of time and patience.
Tarpon are called the silver king and rightly so because they are the kings when it comes to fighting fish.
MAN-OF-WAR BIRDS
Monday our local beaches

It was a spectacular sight to see these birds for they are not often seen.
FISHING CAMP
NEWS
LaFrance's - Richard Hester and party caught about 30 red fish Saturday in the Pearl River area. Some nice specks were also caught. High winds and rain have hurt fishing, but we hope things will improve soon. Live and dead-bait are available also. Skiffs can be rented, Mrs. Toxle Hall said.
Joe's Bayou - Red fish and speckled trout were caught last week but the rain and rough water has messed up fishing so far this week.

Fishing should get good as soon as the weather settles down. No live bait at this time but hope to have some by the weekend, Jimmy Pollon reports.
Bordages - Not too many fish have been caught recently due to the bad weather. The tide is real high and the water is out of its banks. If the weather gets better and the rain stops fishing should improve within about three days, Wilford Bordage said.

Coroner

I would like to thank the people of Hancock County for the opportunity and the privilege of serving as Hancock County's Coroner for the past four years. I would like very much to have this opportunity again in the August 7 primary as your Coroner for another four years.
I was born and raised in Bay St. Louis and graduated from St. Stanislaus College. I am retired from the Gulfport VA Hospital, having served 21 years before retiring. My past experience shows that I have also served with the Lamana-Panno-Fallo, Inc., Funeral Directors in New Orleans for six years. All this experience has a direct relationship to the position of Coroner.
My grandfather was one of the originators of the funeral business in Bay St. Louis, and my father also worked in this business.
After serving 22 months in the United States Navy during World War II in the Pacific campaign, I was honorably discharged from the Navy.
I am married to the former Clifford Kimmel, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward (Manny) Kimmel. We have four daughters, Mrs. William (Beverly) James, Mrs. Henry (Carol Sue) Monti, Mrs. Gary (Gail) Raymond and Mrs. Don (Diane) Major.
I am a member of Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139 in Bay St. Louis, and Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church.

Ladies And Gentlemen Of HANCOCK COUNTY

As the election draws near I would like to reiterate the basis upon which my campaign was founded and to inform you of my policies of administering the Chancery Clerk's Office as your next Chancery Clerk.

But, first, I would like to express my gratitude to the people of Hancock County for the courteous and friendly manner in which they have treated me in their homes, at political rallies, at church fairs, etc. Meeting and talking to each of you on a personal level has indeed been my pleasure and privilege.

I have based my campaign strictly on my qualifications and experience resulting from eight and one-half years of employment in the Chancery Clerk's Office. I have confidence in the voters of Hancock County to recognize that I am the best qualified candidate for the job.

My goals, if elected, are as follows:
I - A well trained, courteous staff.
II - A Chancery Clerk who is not only in the front office, but will be working with and updating the training of the staff to keep the Hancock County Chancery Clerk's Office on a level second to none.
III - To issue county warrants only when there are sufficient funds in the bank and to be able to tell you where the funds were spent.
IV - Investment of idle funds to make a profit for Hancock County.

I had been hopeful of seeing each and every one of you, but as time grows short, I can see that this will not be possible.

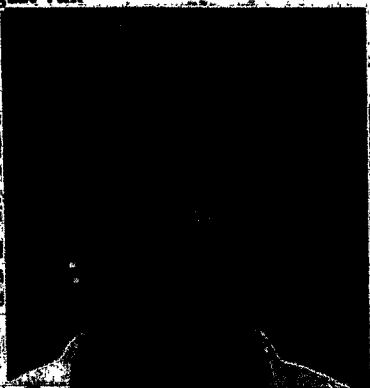

For those of you I did not have the pleasure of visiting at your home or at a public outing, please accept my solicitation of your vote through this media as a personal one.

The privilege of voting gives all of us the opportunity to become involved in our county government. I urge you to exercise this privilege by going to the polls and voting for the candidates of your choice on August 7th.

Weather service predicts hot, dry month ahead

Mississippi farmers can expect hot, dry conditions from late July through mid-August, according to the National Weather Service Outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.
Median rainfall amounts through mid-August usually amount to about 3.5 inches in the north and central counties and increase to between six and seven inches along the Coast. This year, many stations will record less rainfall during these four weeks, usually the hottest of the year.

Highs in the low- to mid-90's and lows in the low- to mid-70's will be common, say agrometeorologists at the Environmental Studies Service Center in Stoneville who prepare the forecasts.
Some higher readings are expected in late July and early August.

Most of the state enters the period with adequate to surplus soil moisture. Farmers should conserve moisture while cultivating, because many areas may need rain again by mid-August. Frequent showers will make pest control difficult.

Degree day 50 totals indicate the rice crop in the Stoneville area is two to three days behind normal. The crop should develop a little faster than usual the next four weeks.

Growers can expect high rates of water loss in late July and early August, say weather experts.

Good pasture growth is expected for the rest of July. Hay curing weather will improve. Late hay crops may suffer from lack of moisture in the first part of August.

Poultry growers should prepare for severe to very severe heat stress. The hot weather will be especially harmful to older flocks in uninsulated poultry houses. Ventilation and watering systems need to be in top working order.

LEGAL BRIEFS

Safe Products Are A Consumer's Right

By Michael F. Colley
President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America

Year after year, many Americans are injured, disabled or killed by defective products.

Modern product safety law is predicated on the philosophy that: (1) the individual must be protected from the dangers of expanding technology and (2) that the risk of human injury must be minimized, and those who profit from the sale of goods, not the buyers, must bear the risk of injury from a defective product.

The law in the majority of states is that manufacturers of defective products will be held strictly liable in money damages for injuries caused by defective products. In addition, Michael F. Colley to the apparent social benefits of reparation to injured or disabled victims or the families of deceased victims, the concept of strict liability has proven to be a great incentive to manufacturers to make their products safer than before.

While the record of American industry is generally excellent, unfortunately some manufacturers show an insensitive disregard for the consumer. The record is full of cases where manufacturers have consciously made cost-benefit economic decisions to the harm of the public or have withheld improved products from the market while selling out the supply of unsafe, unimproved products.

The Association of Trial Lawyers of America (ATLA) supports improved products safety to avoid injury and resulting damages. We believe that the focus should be on the recognition, evaluation and control of risk. This will result in better safety precautions and better quality control review to produce safer products for the American consumer.

The primary purpose of tort law is to deter future injuries to the consumer. Product safety should be of major concern to manufacturers in the public interest.

ISLANDS by John Fowles

(author of THE FRENCH LIEUTENANT'S WOMAN). This lovely volume of photographs of the Scilly Islands is not a guidebook or history, but, as the author says, "is much more about the Scillies of a novelist's mind; and beyond them, about the mysteries, symbolic and real, of all similarly situated small islands; about their silences, their otherness, their magic and their mazes, their eternal waiting for a foot to land."

We have two new books about Billy Graham:

BILLY GRAHAM: A PARABLE OF AMERICAN RIGHTOUSNESS by Marshall Fady. Here is a timely, telling portrait that will intrigue and fascinate followers and critics alike.

MARK COFFIN, U.S.S. by Allen Drury. Here is a magnificent novel of Washington-an insider's view of power at the top, seen through an entirely new cast of vivid, fascinating, and humanly likeable characters by Allen Drury, the author of ADVISE AND CONSENT and an undisputed master of spellbinding political fiction.

BENEATH THE BLUE MOUNTAIN by Richard S. Wheeler. The story of a ferocious clash of wills between a New England Puritan and fiery Spanish nobleman: a clash that soon turned to bloodshed...a war to the very death.

SALT MINE by David Lippincott. The Kremlin, grim, forbidding, and utterly impenetrable...or is it? Could it be that its impenetrability is more a state of mind than a state of fact? Here is a novel that truly thinks the unthinkable and, with an alchemic mix of action, terror, comedy, suspense, and irony, renders it into high probability.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS by Elizabeth Hardwick. Fact and fiction blend together in an imaginative reflection on the past and the present, the failures and recoveries of love, the life of the streets, and the inner life of an American woman.

SELENA by Ernest Brawley. Spanning a quarter of a century, from the early 1950's to the present, and set against the social and political turmoil of that watershed era, SELENA traces the interlocking destinies of a haunting young woman, driven by a mystical belief in her uniqueness, and two desperate men who have been lifelong rivals.

Board of Supervisors

District Three

Hancock County

TO THE PEOPLE OF DISTRICT THREE, HANCOCK COUNTY:

I sincerely solicit your vote for Hancock County District Three Supervisor in the coming Democratic Primary Election on August 7, 1979.

I pledge to you, if elected, to work diligently and earnestly for the welfare of my constituents and for the benefit of District Three, and for the progress of Hancock County. This involves cooperating with local municipalities, boards of various political subdivisions and the citizens of the communities at large.

I will not hesitate to voice my opinion on controversial issues, but I never will engage in any tactics to prevent a person from expressing his or her views on such matters. I shall always regard such expressions of view as a sacred right to be respected and not to be laughed at nor held in contempt.

I recognize that education is the basis of our society and that our eligible school children should not be denied the benefits of an education they so rightly deserve.

Selective industry for the sound and orderly development of our County shall be my guideline when this subject is addressed and considered by the Board of Supervisors.

I shall endeavor to have the finest road system in the County. When constructing a road I will not concentrate on quantity, but will give quality priority. Good business dictates that it is better to have one mile of road correctly built that will last its expected longevity than to have two miles of road that will crumble at the first impact of vehicular traffic.

I have been self-employed for the past twenty-five years in the farming and contracting business.

I am a member of the Catholic Church in Nacaise-White Cypress, and a member of the Knights of Columbus Council No. 7087 in Kiln, Mississippi. I will treat everyone fair and square - what is fair for one is fair for the other.

If anyone desires further information about Joe Cuevas' integrity and ability, ask the people who know him and who have dealt with him, for as you deal with your neighbor, so shall your character be reflected and come to be known.

Sincerely,

JERRY LADNER WANTS YOU TO

Read this ad and then make you make your own choice who will serve the people best.

Jerry Ladner wants the people to know him best.

1. As your Chancery Clerk, Jerry Ladner will publish three times a year an audit so every individual can read and understand it. You won't have to ask Mr. Hamp King, you will know.

2. All Chancery Court Judges are Lawyers too.

3. Our Clerk says ask any lawyer about his ability. Jerry Ladner admits that about 95 percent of the lawyers are against him because Jerry Ladner will serve the people and not just the lawyers. Jerry Ladner will speak out when he feels like the lawyers or anyone else is taking advantage of our County or Tax dollars. He has proven that - here are a few examples so the new voters and those who don't remember can see.

The purchase of Park Property for $135,900, when appraised $24,800

$186,000 School contract $50,000 paid back.

The building code that was unfair to the people.

I feel like most of the lawyers is what has this country and county in the mess we are in today. We can't do anything without a lawyer, no lawyer has every told Jerry Ladner who or who not to vote for, that's why they don't support Jerry Ladner.

Bay lass nervous as pageant hour nears

KATHY BOSLEY

That old competitive spirit, the desire "to go all-out and win" was one of the many attributes that helped 19-year-old Kathy Bosley capture the title of Bay St. Louis's 1979

Miss Hospitality.

Some of the more evident ones are her broad friendly smile, her mischievous brown eyes, and her sparkling personality.

Nevertheless, Kathy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Bosley, was shocked when the master of ceremonies called out her name on May 12. "I just grabbed my face," she recalled. "I couldn't believe it!"

Winning the Bay St. Louis pageant was a great boost for her morale, said Kathy, though being in the public eye is nothing new to her. She was a cheerleader for three years at Bay St. High School where she graduated in 1978, and was selected to the Homecoming court every year.

Kathy, now a sophomore at the University of Southern Mississippi majoring in education, is working as a waitress at the local Pizza Hut to earn money for school in the fall.

The five-foot, six-and-a-half-inch beauty enjoys jogging, softball, swimming, and skiing, as well as playing the piano and sewing her own clothes.

One of Kathy's most exciting duties as Bay St. Louis's new Miss Hospitality is participating in the 30th Annual Miss Hospitality Pageant which is being held this week in Biloxi.

There she is competing with 61 girls from across the state for the chance to represent Mississippi in national advertising and tourism promotion efforts.

Kathy admitted that she had mixed emotions about the state contest. "I'm excited because I want to meet everyone," she said. "I have a little bit of nervousness, a few butterflies, but I'm just going to be myself."

To prepare for some of the judges' questions, Kathy said she had been reading up on Mississippi history. "I got five books from the library, and I've learned some interesting things."

Another feature of the pageant which has taken some creative preparation has been making favors for the 61 girls she will meet there.

Kathy explained that she was using her "family assembly line" to clean oyster shells and then decorate them with scenes of Bay St. Louis. Whether she wins or not, Kathy said she is honored to represent the city as its 1979 Miss Hospitality.

"I would really like to do something for Bay St. Louis," she concluded earnestly.

Local students attend USM 'Mini-Quarter'

The first week of the University of Southern Mississippi Mini-Quarter sessions, a summer orientation program, drew over 650 new and transfer students to the USM campus in Hattiesburg.

According to the Dean of Admissions and Special Academic Services at USM, Dr. Gene Saucier, early Mini-Quarter registrations indicate that USM will "hold its own" or possible increase in enrollment this September.

"Reservations for the summer already total over 2,000," said Billie Pearort, a co-coordinator for the program. "Last year we experienced an increase from the year before and registered 2,200 potential student. I believe we will pass that figure this summer."

"We are very pleased with the early turnout," said Mary Edith Driscoll, director for Mini-Quarter. "Last year we had over 100 no shows for the first session, but this year we have had less than 30."

The Mini-Quarter program is designed to acquaint new and transfer students as well as adult students and the parents of students, with all phases of campus life at USM. Some reservations remain in other scheduled sessions and additional information on the program and reservations may still be made by calling USM at 266-7111 and asking about Mini-Quarter.

Supervisor District Four

TO THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT FOUR:

Once again, I wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of District Four for the fine vote that I received in the first and second primaries of the last election.

During the present administration, a prohibitive tax increase was placed upon all county property owners without opposition. Realizing that in these times of inflation, energy costs, and threatened recession that place burdens on the people, taxes should be lessened instead of being made greater, I pledge to you to never be for a tax increase of any kind unless it is first submitted to the electorate for their vote and only after their approval.

DRAINAGE AND IMPROVEMENT OF ROADS-Planned use of Federal Revenue sharing funds to first correct drainage problems and then construct a road that will last and serve the people.

RECREATIONAL AND YOUTH PROGRAMS-We need to spend more money to provide recreation for our children. I pledge to work for summer job programs for our children.

ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION-Control of pollution is most important to our tourist industry and I will sponsor programs to clean our waterways, particularly Jordan River. I will sponsor sewerage programs for rural areas as money becomes available.

I will do the best job possible with the monies available in all areas of this district.

Privacy Act Poses SSA Requirements

Whenever social security requests information from a person, the agency must meet the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974, social security representative said recently.

Social security is required to give a person the following information whenever the agency asks for personal information:

- Why the information is needed.
- Whether it is voluntary or mandatory to give the information.

- The effects of not giving the information.
- How the information will be used.
- The statutory or other authority for the request.

For example, the spokesman said, whenever a person applies for a social security number, he or she is told that the information requested is needed to assign the person a number.

The person is also told that the authority for requesting information is the Social Security Act.

He or she learns that there are no penalties for refusing to give most kinds of information, but problems can arise if the person refuses the request. If the person does not give the information, social security cannot establish and keep accurate records nor issue a social security number. This in turn could have an effect on future social security benefits.

Please Kids With Popcorn Party

Everyone loves a party and kids are no exception. And since popcorn and kids go together like "snap, crackle, and pop," why not plan an impromptu Popcorn Party for your youngsters and their friends, without waiting for a special occasion?

For a change of pace, you might want to schedule the party in the early evening, centering the entertainment around a favorite TV program. While they're enjoying the show, you can pass out the refreshments.

Treat yourself by keeping the festivities as simple as possible. Available in attractive colors and designs, handy paper or plastic party products cut down on breakage worries and make clean-up easy.

With one of the new hot-air popcorn makers like the Popcorn Pumper from Wear-Ever, your "snafu" attraction is easier than ever to prepare. And, since there are no washable parts (except the detachable butter cup), clean-up is as easy as 1, 2, 3. What's more, the pumper isn't only easy to use, it's fun to watch. The popped corn flies out the chute into the waiting bowl!

Besides being easy, popcorn is a lot more nutritious for kids than sugar-coated fare, and certainly easier on the dentist bill. Instead of using cake and candies to satisfy young "sweet-tooths," serve icy-cold fruit juices.

So remember you don't need to wait for the next birthday to entertain your kids. Throw an impromptu Popcorn Party, and you're a sure win for "Mom of the Month!"

Consumer specialist suggests money-saving entertainment

By NORINE BARNES

Eating together is a good way to enjoy the company of friends and to meet new people. But rising food costs have made entertaining an expensive proposition. The solution is not to stop entertaining, but to learn how to entertain for less.

Less expensive cuts of meat can be made into stews, curries or other dishes that you would be proud to serve to guests. And meals need not be centered around meat.

There are many other good protein sources such as milk, cheese, eggs, legumes. Try picking up a vegetarian cookbook for some ideas on meatless dishes. In fact, cookbooks are always a good source of low cost menu suggestions. Don't be afraid to try something different.

Delicious doesn't have to mean expensive.

You can save money by inviting people over for meals other than supper. Try having friends over for Sunday

News Brief

"William Faulkner: The Nobel Laureate," an exhibit of photographs of the Nobel laureate, will hang at The University of Mississippi Museums July 24 to Aug. 21. The exhibition consists of sepia prints of Faulkner photographs, combined with texts from his letters and lectures and is being held in conjunction with the University's 6th Annual Conference on Faulkner and Toknapatwpha. Taken from the book of the same title, the photographs range from scenes of Faulkner's childhood, college years, and years abroad, to family life and scenes of the novelist at work in his Oxford home, Rowan Oak.

brunch or for dessert and coffee rather than a whole meal.

And you don't always have to provide all of the food yourself. How about a potluck supper where each person brings one dish to share? With friends nearby you can have a progressive supper, one course at each house as you circulate around the neighborhood.

Higher food costs don't have to mean entertaining less. With a little imagination you can entertain just as often at less cost.

Disappearance from all storage positions during April and May 1979 was 96.3 million bushels (2.45 million metric tons), up two percent from the 94.3 million bushels (2.40 million metric tons) for the same period last year.

Old crop oat stocks in all storage positions on June 1, 1979 amounted to 289 million bushels (4.19 million metric tons), seven percent less than a year earlier but 75 percent above the low June 1, 1977 stocks.

Farm stocks at 238 million bushels (3.45 million metric tons) were seven percent below a year ago and off-farm stocks at 50.8 million bushels (737 thousand metric tons) were five percent below a year ago.

Disappearance from all storage positions during April and May 1979 were five percent below a year ago. Disappearance from all storage positions during April and May 1979 was 105 million bushels (1.52 million metric tons), down three percent from the 108 million bushel (1.37 million metric tons) disappearance for the same period last year.

This grain stocks report is based on responses from approximately 23,000 producers who report total stock on their farms, plus responses from about 9,400 grain storage facilities that account for 88 percent of the total off-farm storage capacity.

Buggy business boomed in early part of century

In 1900, buggies were about as important as cars are today.

When I was growing up, there were no cars, no trucks, no airplanes. We rode on the train, in buggies, and wagons or on horseback, or walked.

With buggies so important, back in the old days, there was, of course, a big market for them.

An old magazine had ads in it from 14 different manufacturers of buggies. One company advertised their teen model much as cars advertise new models now.

One advertiser advertised a top buggy as having a Belgian type seat, round corners, beautiful curves and wood parts, all made from second growth hickory.

Another company printed in large letters that their buggies could be pulled by horses or ponies of any size.

Another model was an open top buggy that was called a "hug me tight" because the seat was very narrow and with two people in it, they had to sit extremely close together.

That was the kind the young fellow bought, pretty much as the buy sport model cars today.

Buggies were low in price, running from $39.50 up to $100. While very few companies make buggies now, the same type buggies that used to sell for $39.50 to $80 range up to more than $300 or more now thus showing the inflation that's taken place in my lifetime.

All the ads for buggies described them in glowing terms, pretty much as car makers describe their product today. Surries, which would carry up to 8 or 10 people, were more expensive.

They were pulled by two horses instead of one. To own a surry in 1900 was a status symbol, something like owning a Cadillac or Lincoln car today. Only the well-to-do bought them.

One manufacturer advertised his buggy as the "best on the market, yet priced low," saying, "We're the only company in the country that has such value."

Another company said of their buggy, "The vehicle is not made that combines cheapness, durability, convenience and comfort to a greater degree than does our buggy."

Another buggy-maker said in his ad, "A wider seat and a roomier body and made of the very finest materials and only $50."

A buggy maker in Columbus, Ohio advertised for sale 74 different models of buggies (sounds like present auto ads). Not to be outdone, a Michigan manufacturer advertised that they had 256 styles of buggies to select from.

Buggy whips were widely advertised in the old days, even after I went into business in Picayune in 1919. While preparing this story on buggies, I asked a young fellow who came in if he knew what a buggy whip was.

He looked puzzled and then said, "It must be something you whip a buggy with." He apparently had no idea, even of what a buggy is.

Buggy harness was also highly advertised in the old publications. The world of 1900 was a much different world from today.

At the country church which I attended when a boy, the young fellows would gather around the front of the church before service time to see the girls get out of the buggies, and after church to see them get in the buggies.

The seats into the buggies were high, and to enter or get out of a buggy, a girl had to pull her dress up to her knees or higher in order to be able to get into the buggy. And to get out of the buggy, a girl had to step down something like "18" to "24". Of course, she had to raise her skirt and expose her legs.

As the girls all wore long dresses back then, this leg show at church presented about the only opportunity a country boy had of seeing what kind of props the girl had.

A grand old lady told this story: Her husband got after their grandson about watching the girls get in and out of buggies. He told the boy he did not want to catch him at this again. After the old man left the room, grandma told him, "Don't pay any attention to what your grandpa has said. He was lots worse in that way than you have been when he was your age."

LOOKING FOR LUNCH - When he's waving his 'red flag,' there's some question about whether Mr. Lizard is looking for lunch, looking for love, or just trying to look fierce enough to ward off nosy photographers like Randy Ponder of the Echo who caught this fellow 'doing his things.'

Energy Crisis ...

Benefits From Alternate Fuel

Placement of the natural gas cylinders within the vehicle can vary. In this van, the cylinders are placed in the front of the cargo space. Other van installations situate the cylinders under the floor of the cargo space. For cars, the cylinders are installed in the trunk area.

In a country where the gasoline powered vehicle is king, it may be surprising to know that several thousand vehicles are running on an alternate fuel—natural gas—and running well. Developed by a group of Southern California engineers, the relatively new system for converting a gasoline engine to operate on natural gas has been installed in thousands of vehicles from cars to delivery vans.

Manufactured by Dual Fuel Systems, Inc. of Montebello, California, the system is being used for primarily fleet vehicles—that is, cars, vans, and trucks which return each day to a centralized refueling point.

The system has definite advantages over gasoline including economy, reduced engine emissions, reduced engine wear, and easier starting in very hot or very cold climates.

Converting a vehicle to the Dual Fuel system requires less than a day. When a company installs the system, they also set up a natural gas refueling station. This can either quicken vehicles in less than five minutes or refuel the entire fleet overnight while parked in their stalls.

The vehicle conversion components can be easily removed from a vehicle once it is refueled and installed on another. Although the system was originally developed as a possible solution to the pollution problem, economy has become a major selling point. With ever-rising gasoline costs, the ability to reduce fuel expenditure by as much as 66 percent is reason enough to convert.

The system frequently pays for itself in less than 2 1/2 years. Added economic benefits include savings in operating costs. Engine parts, especially spark plugs and engine oil, may last twice as long as those of a gasoline powered vehicle because natural gas does not contain lead or other additives that produce engine fouling deposits. And since natural gas is a cleaner burning fuel, many communities are converting their municipal vehicles because it does not add to their area's pollution problems in addition to saving tax dollars.

Dual Fuel's engineers continue to experiment with new applications for their systems to make better use of our natural resources and at the same time help reduce air pollution.

The Tigers received superior ratings in every cheering category, received a Spirit Stick everyday, taking a Spirit Stick home. The group sponsored by Mrs. Gloria Biggers capped their achievements by receiving a Super Star Ribbon. Among those participating in the session were: top, Evelyn Bell, Lauren Burns, Kris Bludnik, Alecia Smith, Scherell Smith, Margaret Peranich, Zlena Baker, Cheryl Crosby, Christy Payne, and Rhonda Smith. ## TIN ROOF POTENTIAL

The hot tin roofs of farm outbuildings soon may be utilized by Mississippi soybean and rice farmers to dry their grain as solar collectors, researchers of the LSU agricultural experiment station have discovered—or rather, rediscovered.

In another generation there was nothing uncommon about farm families putting peanuts on their tin roofs for quick drying by radiant heat of mid-summer sun.

But now as the idea comes around again it becomes more sophisticated, and perhaps, more necessary. By constructing a mini-attic just beneath the roof, it is possible to satisfactorily dry both rice and soybeans with the hot air that builds up in the restricted air space beneath the roofs. The system is nearly as efficient as more expensive solar collectors, yet at a fraction of the cost.

A tin roof can be favorably compared with a commercial flat-plate collector, which in recent experiments captured a maximum of 58 percent of the sun's energy that struck it.

Engineers involved in the experiments pointed out that tin roof needs the addition of plywood and purlins just underneath the tin surface to create a hot air space. The air, as it is heated by summer's sun, is piped to grain drying bins. The cost of the tin roof rig is only about one dollar per square foot compared with $12 to $14 for the commercial units.

Four different lots of rice containing from 17.5 to 20.6 percent moisture were dried with warm air from roof-top collectors. It required 6 to 15 days to dry rice to 13 percent moisture. Although it rained and was cloudy during one such test, still the rice was adequately dried in 15 days.

Soybeans did their thing easier and quicker. Beans containing 18 percent moisture dried out to 13 percent moisture in only three days, while soybeans with 21 percent moisture were reduced to 13 percent moisture in five days.

The practical side of the experiment is that most sun belt farmers could utilize storage sheds for collectors, or collectors could be added when constructing new sheds. There is no scarcity of hot sunshine during July, August and September in Mississippi when grain is harvested and dried.

A degree of thermostatic control can be obtained by varying the width and depth of the mini-attic beneath the roof surface. The rate of warm air flow through the grain drying bins was 2½ cubic feet per minute for rice, and from 6 to 9 feet per minute for soybeans. Volume wise it took about one-half square foot of solar collector, or tin roof surface, to dry one bushel of grain.

The research also showed that hot air pumped directly through the beans did no damage to the beans, nor did cooler, more humid night air create a problem.

Farmers in the Midwest have utilized less expensive natural gas which today is more scarce and costly—generating a new interest in solar heating and drying in the South.

The bare-plate collector system, such as hot tin roofs, offers other potential uses in heating homes, greenhouses, work or other enclosed areas.

WEATHER EQUIPMENT

Metereologists in more than 140 countries are now using 10 space satellites, 50 research ships, 110 aircraft, 300 high-altitude balloons, and 300 instrumented buoys to make about 20,000 weather observations a day, according to the National Weather Federation.

Extension Service reporter tells irrigation advantage

FARM NEWS AND VIEWS
 By MIKE WINDHAM
 Extension Service

Last summer, farmers in every area of the state lost money and crops because of extremely dry weather. Already this year, the dry spell after a wet spring has hurt many row crop producers.

As we approach the long, hot, dry days of late summer, farmers are acutely aware of the moisture their crops need. Currently, most irrigation is in the northwestern section, the Mississippi Delta.

The flat land and abundant water supply make irrigation easy and relatively inexpensive.

Last year, about 300,000 acres were irrigated in Mississippi. Between 40,000 and 50,000 acres produced cotton.

Extension Agricultural Engineer John McVey says the cotton land irrigated last year produced more than two bales of cotton per acre. Land in the same area, but not under some form of irrigation, produced about a bale of cotton per acre.

Three main types of irrigation are practiced in the state. The most common is the oldest, the simple ditch and open furrow method.

The second most popular method is the "gated-pipe and furrow system." The gated pipes replace the open ditch, but basically it is the same system.

The third method is called the "center-pivot sprinkler" system. It acts like a giant self-propelled sprinkler and pivots around the water well or water supply point. These huge sprinklers irrigate several hundred acres at a time.

"Our vegetable farmers must irrigate if they are going to produce quality produce," the agricultural engineer says. "With rice, it's a must."

One of the most important factors in any irrigation system this summer is energy. When most farmers think about energy needs, they think only about diesel fuel for tractors and other motorized equipment.

For rice producers, water wells will cost a substantial amount as energy costs increase, according to McVey.

Most of the time, water is pumped into rice fields for about 100 days. McVey says a typical rice water well in the Delta flows about 2,000 gallons of water per minute.

The pump will use three gallons of diesel per hour or 72 gallons per day. Using a diesel cost of about $45 per day times 100 days, the cost of pumping water from only one well adds up to $4,500. McVey says a 2,000 gallon per minute well usually irrigates about 125 acres of land.

"Timing is probably the most important part of supplemental irrigation. Knowing when to irrigate and how to apply the right amount of water makes irrigation pay for itself," he says.

One piece of equipment used to help farmers decide if their soil needs moisture is a tensiometer.

The tensiometer is placed in the soil where its tip is at the same depth of the crop's root system.

McVey says tensiometers can be used with any crop produced in Mississippi. A gauge indicates the amount of water remaining in the soil.

Soybeans, for example, require supplemental irrigation when the moisture level reaches between 40 and 50 centibars.

This summer, the farmers who already have irrigation systems or who plan to irrigate should plan to irrigate as efficiently as possible to reduce their energy consumption bills.

McVey recommends several ways to save money. He says the most important one is to improve the pumping plant's efficiency.

Diesel engines should be matched with the size of pump they are running. The pressure on the equipment should match the job.

McVey says there's no need to have a lot of water pressure wasted at the end of the ditch or line. He says farmers should reduce the water they have to pump. This means checking systems for wasted water that doesn't go into the field.

Another important factor is the bottom of the water well. McVey says well screens should penetrate water-bearing formations fully. If the screen doesn't go deep enough, the pump won't be as efficient. Worn-out pumps require more fuel.

Large scale irrigation is still new to most Mississippi producers. But, it's growing every year. Soybean producers are learning they can pay for their irrigation systems in a few years when they compare the cost with the increased yields of irrigated crops.

This is especially true in dry seasons like the one we had last year.

Last Shuttle engine passes exam

The last of the Space Shuttle Columbia's three flight engines this week has passed its flight acceptance test given by Rocketdyne at the National Space Technology Laboratories near Bay St. Louis.

The engine passed test requirements with a successful 520-second firing, matching the running time required for flight to orbit.

Following an electrical and mechanical check-out, the engine will be formally accepted from the contractor by officials of NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala., and will be shipped to Kennedy Space Center, Fla., later this month.

The other two first-flight main engines have already passed acceptance tests and were shipped the Kennedy Space Center several weeks ago.

One of these engines is presently being installed in the Columbia.

All of the engines were designed, developed and built by Rocketdyne and are warranted by the manufacturer for a minimum of 1000 hours or 1000 cycles, whichever comes first.

YOU AND YOUR PET

Intestinal parasites are a chronic problem with many pets, and worm medicines are some of the most common non-prescription pet medicines sold. These medicines may be more beneficial if pet owners understand some basic information about parasites and their control.

First, you should know that pets usually acquire worms from fecal material containing worm eggs, and from fleas carrying immature worms. Puppies may even be born with worms that migrated into the mother's womb. Pets do not automatically develop worms from eating sweets, milk or certain other foods.

Second, the symptoms of worm infestation can vary greatly, depending upon the type of parasite and the age of your dog or cat. Some pets with worms lose weight, become anemic and have dull coats or potbellies.

Others show few signs, if any. Generally, young animals are more susceptible to the effects of internal parasites than older pets, which may develop some resistance to parasitic attacks.

Any pet that harbors a large number of parasites runs the risk of serious physical injury. Worms that travel from one organ to another damage tissues and interfere with the proper functioning of the body's systems.

With heavy infestation, a critical amount of blood may be lost and young animals may die. Those that survive may be permanently stunted. Adult animals may become sluggish, have diarrhea and generally appear ill.

Your veterinarian can determine if worms are present by examining fecal sample under a microscope. He or she may also examine the area around the pet's anus for rice-like particles that are tapeworm segments.

Worms are controlled by medications given by mouth or by injection. Generally, two or more doses are given, two to three weeks apart. The first treatment will kill the adult worms; the others will eliminate the young worms that hatch from remaining eggs.

If you decide to treat the pet yourself, remember that a worm medicine is not a cure-all. Too many pet owners turn to this medication at the first sign of any sickness in their pets.

A definite diagnosis of a worm problem is necessary if the medicine is to be effective. Vague symptoms such as fever or diarrhea are not positive signs of worm infections. Many individuals worsen the situation by overdosing, or worming a pet that is sick for another reason.

The common internal parasites found in pets include roundworms, hookworms and tapeworms. These worms reside in the intestinal tract and rob cats and dogs of vital nutrients by feeding on intestinal contents or drawing blood from the mucous membranes lining the intestinal walls.

Successful worm control procedures combine the use of a worming agent with a thorough cleaning of the animal's living quarters. Check with your veterinarian regarding a disinfectant suitable for use in kennels and other pet areas.

To help prevent reinfection of your pet, plan on regular removal of waste from litter pans and runs, plus a flea control program.

Because your pet can become infected with a wide variety of internal parasites, and because identification of the parasite is necessary before treatment, I strongly suggest you consult your veterinarian in order to establish a worming program for your cat or dog.

DRUNKEN DAD?

Q. My husband's drinking problem is beyond help as far as I am concerned. I don't think I can take it much longer. Sometimes I am afraid I will have a breakdown. I could leave him, but the problem is our son. He is a quadriplegic and we take care of him between us. Do you think it would be a sin I walked out and left him to the mercy of his drunken dad? I think I would feel guilty and things wouldn't be much better.

A. No, you cannot walk out on a quadriplegic son. Of course you would feel guilty if you did.

Try to get your husband in touch with Alcoholics Anonymous. We have seen the most "hopeless" drunks changed into sober people.

You yourself can get help from the Al-Anon organization where you will meet people with problems like yours. Don't give up on your husband, tough as it is.

Sometimes in this life responsibility comes hard, but God will help you if you trust Him.

Perhaps you will find help in our pamphlet, Draw Upon The Higher Power, which is on its way to you. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Rawling, N.Y. 12564.

NEVER WENT STEADY
Q. Last September our 17-year-old daughter asked our permission to date a very nice boy.

Now she has stopped dating anyone else and dates him once a week and sees him on Sundays. Also he calls every night. We did talk with her and explain why she shouldn't go steady. I never went steady in high school and none of our other daughters did. I worry that just trusting in God and prayer are not enough and there should be something for me to say or do.

A. Worrying that trusting in God is not enough, of course not trusting at all. For a girl to date a boy once a week and on Sunday is certainly not unreasonable. Nor is going steady. Perhaps she is learning to love the boy, and her. Perhaps they want to see each other, and no one else. And that could be good if she is a good girl and he is a good boy, which, undoubtedly they both are.

Trust your daughter, for I am sure she is trustworthy. KEEPING FATHER AT HOME

Q. I have a real respectable, kind gentleman friend, a husband, tough as it is.

But his children rule him and do not want him to get married or to get away from his house very much. They are unmarried, middle-aged and still live with him. I'm a widow and would like you to please say something to them and to him.

A. If your "real respectable, kind gentleman friend" is also in possession of his faculties, namely, not senile, then he should be entitled to run his own life and certainly not be controlled by his middle-aged children. He should be man enough to live his own life.

Milk processed by the ultra-high temperature (UHT) method can be stored without refrigeration for several months. The UHT process costs less and is energy saving. Also, UHT milk has a nutritive value similar to regularly pasteurized milk. ## USM Theatre Department presents "The Heiress"

The story of a shy young girl, her stern father, and a fortune-seeking suitor, "The Heiress" opened Tuesday and performances continue through Aug. 9 at the Southern Playhouse on the University of Southern Mississippi campus in Hattiesburg. Dr. Blaine Quarnstrom, chairman of the Theatre Arts department, will direct members of the Southern Arena Theatre cast in the play by Ruth and Augustus Goetz based on the Henry James novel "Washington Square."

When the play opened on Broadway critics described it as "a fault and bitter play that holds you every instant" and as "a refreshing excursion into intelligence and good taste."

Most recently the play was presented in 1976 at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The other plays in the SAT's third repertory season are "The Waltz of the Toreadors" and "The Importance of Being Earnest."

"Our 1979 company is made up of some of the best young talent in the South," Quarnstrom said.

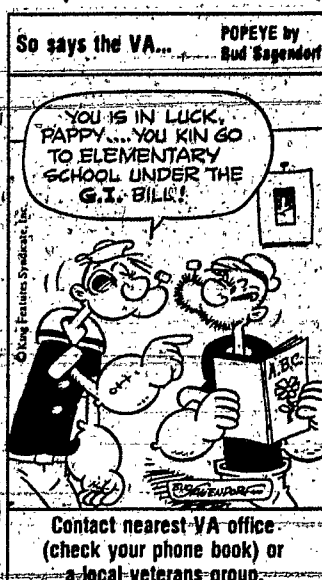

That talent includes Kay Koonce of Sildell, La., as the main character, Catherine, whose only chance for love is destroyed by her tyrannical father, a doctor, played by Pat Kennerly of Roanoke, Va.

Morris, the handsome, suave and mercenary suitor who jilts, then returns later to Catherine, is played by Greg Alexander of Charlotte, N.C. The heiress' spinster aunt, Lavina Penniman, is played by Stephanie Morias of Wesson.

Other members of the cast include Lena Crafton of Kennet, Mo., as Maria, the maid; and Denise Childers of Laurel as Mrs. Almond, the doctor's sister. Arthur will be played by David Stevens of Hattiesburg, Miriam by Claire Goulet of Long Beach and Carole O'Connor of Ocean Springs, will be Mrs. Montgomerly.

Performance for "The Heiress" are scheduled for 8 p.m. on July 27 and Aug. 1, 4, 8. For ticket information call 286-7400 and 286-7225.

Experiment Station to reveal research findings at seminars

The state's soybean farmers will have an opportunity to learn about soybean research conducted at six branches of the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station (MAFES) this summer.

Sponsors of soybean field days are MAFES, the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service (MCES), the Mississippi Soybean Promotion Board and the Mississippi Soybean Association.

Each half-day program will feature presentations by Experiment Station personnel and MCES specialists who will also be available to talk with soybean producers about specific farming problems.

Subjects for the sessions will include cultural practices, variety testing and development, weed control, irrigation, double-cropping, varieties and rotation for cyst nematode control, herbicide evaluation and optimum planting dates.

Dates and places for the first three soybean field days are: July 25, Delta Branch Experiment Station, Stoneville, 1:30 p.m.; July 26, Brown Loam Experiment Station, Raymond, 9 a.m.; and August 3, Black Belt Experiment Station, Brooksville, 9 a.m.

Three other field days will be held in late August at Experiment Station branches in Poplarville, Newton and Verona.

USM's Coast campuses set record enrollment

The summer enrollment figure for the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Coast has reached 1,844, the highest enrollment for USM on the Mississippi Gulf Coast since the regional campus opened in 1972.

The enrollment figure is a combination of enrollments for USM-Gulf Park and centers at Keeler and Jackson County Junior College, with an NSTL campus in Hancock County soon to add its enrollment total.

Enrollment for the current summer term is 187 students more than in 1978, a 9.3 percent increase.

"Our increase for this summer has come from the Jackson County Center with about a 35 percent increase, or 115 students, over last summer," Dr. Joe Holloway dean of USM Gulf Coast, said.

The Jackson County Center is located on the campus of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in Gautier.

Director of the Jackson County Center, Jerry Reeves credits the increase to "additional courses and greater visibility of the programs generated by more people being able to get the classes they need in Jackson County."

The total Coast effort of USM has been enhanced over the past four years, by the Two-Plus-Two program, the coordinated effort between USM and the MGJC allowing for all course work in more than 30 degree programs to be taken on the Coast.

"The comprehensive nature of the Two-Plus-Two program as well as the ease with which a student can come from the junior college system and continue his degree program at USM, without interruption, has been a big factor in the enrollment increase we have experienced on the Coast," said Louis Elias, director of student services for USM-Gulf Coast.

"Normally we have increased between five and seven percent each term, however this 9.3 percent increase for the current summer over last summer has exceeded our expectations and is very encouraging, especially for our Jackson County Center," Elias said.

The new segment of USM on the Gulf Coast recently opened at NSTL in Hancock County. This facility will serve, primarily, the personnel at NSTL as well as individuals from the surrounding area.

"We see the NSTL addition as another opportunity to help meet the educational needs of Coast residents specifically the more than 3,000 people directly associated with the NASA facility," Holloway said.

Farm Safety Is Emphasized July 25-31

MISSISSIPPI STATE - The week of July 25-31 is National Farm Safety Week, according to Dannie Reed, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service farm safety specialist.

President Jimmy Carter, in making the proclamation, reaffirmed the need to reduce the number of accidents and fires that lower production and bring personal loss to farmers and ranchers.

Co-sponsored by the National Safety Council and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, National Farm Safety Week is supported by many agencies which serve agriculture. It was begun in 1944, adds Reed.

"Personal Protection - A Defense Against Injury" is the theme for this year's National Farm Safety Week. Personal protective equipment is a significant factor in reducing the number and severity of work injuries in other industries, adds Reed, and we want to encourage its expanded use by farmers and ranchers.

FDA explains safety of microwave ovens

Microwaves can catch speeders, carry telephone and television messages, and make sore muscles feel better. They can also bake a cake and cook a steak rare, medium, or (if you insist) well done.

Microwaves are also used by industry to dry plywood and cure rubber and resins. But microwave energy goes to work most often in hundreds of thousands of homes across the country, where microwave ovens are baking cakes and steaks, not to mention breads and casseroles.

Are microwave ovens safe? The Food and Drug Administration, which has regulated the manufacture of microwave ovens since 1971, believes that ovens that meet FDA standards and are used according to the manufacturer's instructions are as safe as most electronic home appliances.

Microwaves are a form of "electromagnetic" radiation; that is, they are waves of electric and magnetic energy moving together through space.

Those waves have three characteristics that allow them to be used for cooking: they are reflected by metal; they pass through glass, paper, plastic, and similar materials; and they are absorbed by foods.

Microwaves are produced inside the oven by an electron tube called a magnetron.

The microwaves bounce back and forth within the metal interior until they are absorbed by food. The energy that is given off when the microwaves are absorbed causes the water molecules in the food to do a little dance or vibrate, producing heat that cooks the food.

The energy does not make food radioactive or "contaminated."

All microwave ovens made in the last eight years are covered by a radiation safety standard enforced by the Food and Drug Administration.

The standard limits, to a level considered safe, the amount of radiation that can leak from an oven throughout its lifetime.

The standard also requires all ovens to be equipped with two independent interlock systems. These systems stop the production of microwaves the moment the latch is released or the door opened.

Other systems are also provided in case both interlock mechanisms fail.

FDA also takes steps to assure that its standards are met, testing microwave ovens in commercial establishments, on dealer and distributor premises, at manufacturing plants, and in its own laboratories.

There have been no documented cases of radiation injury from microwave ovens. All injuries reported so far could have happened with any oven or cooking surface.

For example, people have been burned by the hot food or steam from food cooked in a microwave oven.

Even with the good safety record to date, some precautions are still appropriate in using microwave ovens. For the safest use, FDA offers the following tips:

Examine a new oven for evidence of shipping damage.

Follow the manufacturer's instruction manual for recommended operating procedures and safety precautions.

Never operate an oven if the door does not close firmly or if it is bent, warped, or otherwise damaged.

Never insert objects through the door grill or around the door seal.

Never turn on the oven when it is empty.

Clean the oven cavity, door, and seals frequently with water and a mild detergent.

A special microwave oven cleaner is not necessary. Do not use scouring pads, steel wool, or other abrasives.

Periodically check the seals around the door, and if they have deteriorated, have a qualified service person replace them.

For more information on microwave oven radiation, write to: Food and Drug Administration, 297 Plus Park Blvd., Nashville, TN 37217.

CAR meets in Waveland

The Captain Edward Jordan Society, Children of the American Revolution, from New Orleans, La., held a meeting at the "Double L" cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd H. Labatut on Favre Lane, Waveland, recently.

The president, Donald Wagner, presided. The group discussed plans to attend a regional meeting in Jackson, July 30-31. After the meeting, first vice-president Richard D. Labatut, hosted the group to a picnic lunch and swim. Many senior members from the sponsoring DAR Chapter, Robert Harvey, and several friends, also attended.

Federal official praises MSU loan repayment rate

The National Direct Student Loan (NDSL) program at Mississippi State University has been described as a "model" for other institutions by a Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) spokesman.

"Institutions such as yours have demonstrated that the NDSL program can be administered successfully," said the spokesman in a recent letter to MSU officials.

The program has been adversely affected nationally by a raising number of defaults on student loans in many of the participating institutions.

Mississippi State's default rate for students was only 8.78 percent for fiscal year 1978-79, substantially less than the national average of 17.6 percent. It was also below the 10 percent rate which the Office of Education has set as a target for all participating schools.

This record has stood the institution in good stead towards receiving NDSL funds in the future. Joseph A. Califano, former HEW secretary, indicated future funding under NDSL will be based on institutional performance.

"New NDSL funds were severely affected in institutions where default rates were higher than 10 percent," said MSU financial aid director Larry Blankenship.

"We were fortunate that funds for this program were not only continued at Mississippi State, but were increased because of the low delinquency rate," he added.

Mississippi State has received a 9.8 percent increase in NDSL funds for fiscal year 1979-80, totalling $97,000, Blankenship said.

He attributed the success of the program at MSU to the efforts of the collections staff within the Office of Financial Aid.

"The handling of collections through the financial aid office and not through the business office, as is done in many institutions, is also an advantage," Blankenship said.

Another important reason for the program's success at Mississippi State has been the students themselves, said one MSU official.

"The conscientious commitment of the students who borrow is a major factor in the program's success at Mississippi State," said Dr. Robert L. Jones, vice president for student affairs.

"This commitment, and the diligent application of collections procedures have worked together to assure us of a low default rate," he said.

Financial aid office figures show more than 10,000 NDSL accounts at Mississippi State University. Approximately 500 are added yearly.

"We collect approximately $750,000 each year," Blankenship said.

The HEW spokesman asked for MSU's cooperation, "should we find it advantageous to call upon institutions managing exemplary programs for advice."

MISSISSIPPI MARKET NEWS

WATERMELON ACREAGE

The 1979 watermelon intended acreage planted is 13,300 acres. This is up 300 acres (2 percent) from 1978. The 1979 watermelon acreage for harvest is estimated at 12,500 acres, up 500 acres (4 percent) from 1978.

Wet field conditions slowed planting progress. Spring weather was generally cooler than normal and insects and diseases were worse than normal. Harvest of early planted fields began after mid-June.

United States Prospective area of watermelons for harvest during the summer quarter of 1979 is estimated at 111 thousand acres, 3 percent less than the area harvested during the same quarter of 1978. Production is expected to total 11.1 million cwt, a decrease of 10 percent from the 1978 summer quarter output.

The watermelon crop was planted on schedule in North Carolina. Prospects are mostly fair to good. In Alabama, dry conditions have reduced disease problems. Rain is needed to fully develop the crop. Oklahoma's watermelon crop is in good to excellent condition.

Cool spring weather coupled with abundant moisture has been ideal for crop development. Insect and disease problems have been minor. Most of Central and East Texas experienced a very wet, cool spring which delayed land preparation and planting. Also, this cool, damp weather resulted in poor seed germination and thin stands particularly in areas with poor drainage.

In Arizona watermelon harvest is in full swing in the western areas and is just reaching volume movement in the central sections.

Harvest is running about 2-3 weeks late, primarily because of late planting. Supplies are expected to be available through late planting.

Supplies are expected to be available throughout July or early August in the Valley (Blythe) area and in about at peak levels.

Harvest should continue until the end of July. In other areas the crop is expected to be available through late July or early August. Supplies are expected to be available through late July or early August.

some fields show poor plant growth. Harvest has started in early areas. San Joaquin Valley volume will begin about mid-July.

Safety commission warns of possible fan defects

The Vernco Division of the Emerson Electric Company in Columbus, Indiana, today announced it is still trying to contact the owners of some of its portable electric fans which could catch on fire.

The firm urges consumers to return the fans for free repairs. This announcement was made in cooperation with the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

According to the firm, the rotors on some 3- and 19-inch fans may lock, possibly causing the motor to overheat and the plastic components to ignite.

CPSC and the company are concerned that consumers using unrepaired fans during the current summer weather are exposing themselves to a potential fire hazard. To date, only a small percentage of the approximately 72,000 fans in question have been returned for modification.

Approximately 75 percent of the fans were sold by Sears, Roebuck & Company. These fans are inscribed with the initials "SR" in the center of a plastic fan guard are light green in color, and stand on a circular plastic base. The 13-inch model sold at a retail price of approximately $30 and the 19-inch for about $50.

The fans marketed directly by Vernco bear the "Vernco" inscription on the fan guard. They are light blue, are also mounted on circular stands, and were sold at comparable prices through other retailers nationwide.

All of the fans were manufactured in 1973 and 1974.

The fans posing the potential hazard are stamped on the bottom with a 5-digit date code ending with the number "3" or "4," along with Vernco model number V4001 or V-1003, or Sears number 758.00503 or 758.00550.

Consumers who own one of the fans should return it as soon as possible to the place of purchase to arrange for free repair.

Anyone requiring additional information about the Vernco models being recalled should contact Norman Edwards, Vernco, 231 (212) 672-0011. Information about Sears fans can be obtained at any Sears retail store.

Consumers wishing to verify the model numbers may contact CPSC's toll-free Hotline at the following numbers: In the Continental

State labor force passes million mark

Mississippi's civilian labor force surpassed the one million mark in June for the first time in the state's history while the unemployment rate rose to 6.3 percent, an increase of 1.1 percent over May's 5.2 percent, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director Edgar C. Lloyd Jr.

The 6.3 percent jobless rate attributed in part to an influx of summer workers, was slightly higher than the national rate of 6.0 for June. MESC figures showed 63,300 unemployed and 941,400 employed out of a civilian labor force of 1,004,800. MESC totaled 13,510 placements for the month of June.

The counties having the highest rate of unemployment were Tate with a rate of 12.7, Montgomery with a rate of 11.6 and Bolivar with a rate of 11.3. Smith, Itawamba, Lafayette and Rankin had the lowest rate of unemployment. Smith had an unemployment rate of 4.1, Itawamba and Lafayette had an unemployment rate of 4.0 and Rankin had an unemployment rate of 2.8.

Only five counties, Calhoun, Kemper, Lafayette, Newton and Sharkey showed a decrease in the employment rate for June.

According to Dr. Dommm, youngsters under 15 years of age represent one third of all firearms deaths.

"The strongest recommendation I can make," he emphasizes, "is that parents keep all guns and ammunition under lock and key. In addition, guns should be unloaded before they are brought into the house."

Dr. Dommm also advises at least partial disassembly of any hunting rifle to prevent the child from loading the gun himself.

He suggests that parents teach their children proper respect for firearms. "Many children don't realize how dangerous guns can be in their hands and how easily they can accidentally discharge," he cautioned.

Dr. Dommm warns of the tremendous mental suffering neglected parents endure when their children are injured.

"Sometimes the anguished parents never recover from the shock and grief of an accident that follows," Dr. Dommm says.

questions and answers

Q. Up until now, my mother lived alone in an apartment. Because her health is failing, I've convinced her to come live with us. How will this affect her SSI payments?

A. If an eligible person (or couple) lives in another person's household and receives support and maintenance in kind from that person, the basic SSI amount is reduced by one-third. This reduction takes the place of counting the dollar value of the support and maintenance as income. Your mother should notify social security of her change in living arrangements.

Q. I haven't decided exactly when I'm going to stop work, so I haven't applied for social security retirement payments yet. A friend told me I should apply now, though, because there's a limit on back benefits. Is this true?

A. Before 1978, a person could elect to receive benefits for up to 12 months before the month of application if all requirements were met during that period. Now, back benefits generally are not payable if they would result in permanent benefit reduction. For more information, call any social security office.

Pulpit Points

By DR. L.S. WALKER

It is through faith in Jesus Christ that we overcome all enemies, including the last enemy, death.

"Death," said, Marcia Arellus, emperor of Rome, "is no respecter of persons, whether you are king or peasant. The greatest oak must fall."

Nothing is more inevitable, more certain than every life, as we know it here, must end. It is a certain truth, the day we begin to live, that day we also begin to die. It is a rendezvous we must keep. What is the best way to meet that event?

The best way, of course, is with faith - faith in Jesus Christ, God's Son; faith in an eternal life ahead.

The Scriptures are replete with reminders that faith is the precious commodity one must have with him when he crosses the "Great Divide" and comes into God's presence.

"Yes, though I walk through the valley of death," cried the Psalmist, "I will fear no evil, for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

In the Book of Joshua it is written: "Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

"Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is," said the prophet Jeremiah.

Death is everyone's eventual companion and should be so recognized. Charles Fortman, the American theatrical manager, once mused: "Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure in life."

General Douglas MacArthur philosophized: "Only those are fit to live who are not afraid to die."

Dag Hammarskjöld, a United Nations secretary-general, advised: "Do not seek death. Death will find you. But seek the road which makes death a fulfillment."

The end of life has prompted a great variance of thoughts. Oliver Goldsmith, the British poet, wrote: "The life of a man is a journey; a journey that must be traveled, however bad the roads or the accommodations."

Henry Ward Beecher, the great preacher, sermonized: "God asks no man whether he will accept life. That is not the choice. You must take it. The only choice is how?"

Stephen Girard, the early American philanthropist, looked ahead with the expressed view: "When death comes to meet it will find me busy, unless I am asleep. If I thought I was going to die tomorrow, I should nevertheless plant a tree today."

Such has long been my personal sentiment. When the Master calls, I hope I can be found busy in His service. Why not?

Mark Twain penned the line: "All say, 'how hard is it that I should die?' A strange complaint to come from the mouths of people who have had to live."

Miguel Cervantes, the Spanish novelist, observed: "When we leave this world, and are laid in the earth, the prince walks as narrow a path as the laborer."

Henry Van Dyke told a congregation: "I shall grow old, but never lose life's zest, because the road's last turn will be the best."

To those who cross the final bridge with their faith in Him who conquered death, it is as

Paul told the Corinthians: "Death is swallowed up in victory."

Ancient Job raised the much-asked question: "If a man die, shall he live again?" In John's Gospel, our Lord answers: "He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?"

Teacher group reports political endorsements

Mississippi Political Action Council of Teachers (M-PACT), the political action arm of the Mississippi Association of Educators, has endorsed three candidates for statewide office and is supporting the re-election of State Senator Martin Smith of Hancock and Pearl River counties, Rep. J.P. Comptre of Hancock County, and Rep. Gerald Blessey of Harrison County.

State Land Commissioner John Ed Ainsworth has been endorsed for lieutenant governor because of his efforts in 18th Section Land reform; the association reports.

In the Attorney General's race, State Senator Charles Pickering was endorsed for a second term.

The 21-member M-PACT Steering Council met in Jackson Tuesday to review candidate interviews and local endorsements before announcing its final slate.

"We are working to elect leadership that is committed to public education and our children's welfare," said Dexter Montgomery of Amory, M-PACT chairman.

Organization is a part of life! If your living space seems to be a jungle of misplaced, lost or mismatched items, you're a likely candidate for a crash course in organizing storage space.

Besides saving time and making life a bit easier, organizing your living area can give you more space.

"Learning to organize storage space is even more important when both husband and wife are working," says Regina Rector, extension associate in design and environmental analysis at the N.Y. State College of Human Ecology, Cornell.

"There's no time to always be picking up," she points out. Rector outlines seven basic principles for organizing storage space:

1. Eliminate unnecessary items.

2. Consider where you will store an item before you purchase it.

3. Choose multipurpose items when possible. A dining table could also serve as a desk and sewing table; a stereo speaker could double as an end table.

4. Store items where they are used most frequently. If you like to sew while watching television, it will save time and steps if you keep your sewing basket in the television room, rather than the bedroom.

5. Store items so they are easily seen and reached, especially those items which are frequently used. Seasonal items, like Christmas tree stands, can be stored in hard-to-reach places.

6. Store together all items to be used together. Keeping a bag of rags near the shoe polish will save time and effort, as will storing breakfast cereal near the bowls and the spoons.

7. Return all items to their places, after use.

There are several things you can do to make the storage space you have more flexible. Shoe boxes or cardboard dividers can be inserted into drawers to keep them neat and well-organized.

Step shelves in the kitchen cupboards can make better use of dish storing space. Simple bricks and wood planks can be assembled to provide storage shelves against a wall.

Program offers employers 50 percent wage tax break

A poultry company in Collins, Ms. will have 50 percent of wages paid to 55 of its 500 employees this year because the company is taking advantage of a new federal tax break.

Collingwood Poultry Processing has certified 55 employees under the new Targeted Jobs Tax Credit (TJTC) program.

Through TJTC, employers can claim a federal income tax credit amounting to half the wages (in most cases) paid to new employees who are hired from one of seven "targeted" groups.

Travis Kelly, Collingwood Poultry personnel manager, said his company became aware of the program through the Mississippi Employment Security Commission's Job Service Office in Collins.

"We called in some job orders and they told us hiring from the target groups could mean a tax savings," he said. Right now we have certified 55 of our employees on TJTC and would like to hire as many people as we can through it. We've found it to be very successful," Kelly said.

Kelly said he had found no problems with the program. The paperwork is minimal and our target group employees receive the same training as any other employees," he continued.

The Targeted Jobs Tax Credit program was established in the Revenue Act of 1978.

It is a cost effective way of increasing employment opportunities while allowing employers a tax savings on wages paid between Jan. 1, 1979 and Dec. 31 1980 to certified employees hired after Sept. 26, 1978.

The credit allowable is equal to 50 percent of qualified first year wages and 25 percent of qualified second year wages.

Target employees include recipients of Supplemental Security Income payments; handicapped individuals referred from vocational rehabilitation; youth, 18 through 24, from economically disadvantaged families; economically disadvantaged Vietnam-era veterans under 25; youth 18, through 18, participating in an approved cooperative education program; and ex-convicts, who are economically disadvantaged and hired within five years of release from prison or date of conviction.

Any employer interested in the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit program should contact the nearest office of the Mississippi Employment Security Commission.
